Kershaw County Resident Sentenced on Federal Drug Violations

Columbia, South Carolina ---- United States Attorney Bill Nettles stated Jamie Lubell Dixon, age 33, of Elgin, South Carolina, was sentenced to 262 months imprisonment on November 16, 2011 in United States District Court after pleading guilty to conspiracy to distribute 500 grams or more of cocaine and 280 grams or more of cocaine base, in violation of Title 21, United States Code, Section 846 and 841(a)(1). Dixon was involved in a drug conspiracy which began in the summer of 2006 and had been captured on videotape by undercover law enforcement distributing illegal narcotics on multiple occasions from September 2009 until October 2010. The case was investigated by the South Carolina Law Enforcement Division and the Kershaw County Sheriff's Office, with the assistance of the Drug Enforcement Administration and was prosecuted by Assistant United States Attorneys JD Rowell and Jean Popowski of the Columbia Office.
